Class Ode.

Words by Gladys Blackmer.
Music by Alice Ellen Sylvia.

Now we stand upon life's threshold,
Looking backward through the years
Of our school days — happy memories
Of our varied joys and fears!
And we thank you, Alma Mater,
For your ever watchful eye,
Which has guarded and directed
Toward ambition's goal on high.

Alma Mater, you have opened
Wide for us a treasure store,
And from out its rich abundance
Have we wealth for evermore.
We have found there honor's diadem,
Wisdom's ruby, hope's bright star,
And the jewelled chain of friendship,
Which no fate shall break or mar.

Thus we stand before the entrance,
At the open door of life,
With its mingled bliss and sorrow,
With its struggle and its strife;
But Success stands always beck'ning
To the steadfast and the true;
We shall conquer, Alma Mater,
Through the precepts taught by you.

As we pause before this portal,
Linger with a faint regret,
Let us turn our faces forward,
And these precepts ne'er forget.
Let us turn our faces upward
Whence that glimmering light doth stream;
Make our lives sincere and noble,
Brightened by the guiding Gleam.

City.

My dear Miss Knox:—

I have just read in the Times the announcement of the high honor won by your splendid scholarship.

Please accept my sincere congratulations upon your magnificent record.

You have given — not alone your immediate friends — but all people of color cause for pride.

Such achievements are the undeniable evidences that the realm of the intellect knows neither race nor color.

Whenever Happiness and Joy
With friendly glance your dwelling seek,
I fain would at that portal stand
And glad congratulations speak.
So though I may be far away
Heartfelt good wishes I would send,
And say, in all sincerity,
Your happiness is mine, my friend.

NEW BEDFORD, MASSACHUSETTS

1912

The courses of study offered in the New Bedford High School are classified broadly in four groups. In these four groups are sixteen courses of study; and in the sixteen courses are thirty-two subjects.

The name given to each group indicates, as nearly as is possible in a single word, the aim of the courses in each group. The terms A₁, A₂, B₁, B₂, etc., are the brief technical names used in the High School for purposes of organization.

Pupils and parents are earnestly requested to consider very carefully the selection of courses of study.

The large number of courses offered permit the pupil to exercise his personal choice of studies. A course may be thus selected to suit a pupil's inclinations, ability, and aim in life. As the intelligent choice of a course is a very important and difficult matter, the principal and the teachers will gladly give all possible information and assistance. Pupils and parents are urged to consult them freely.

1. Pupils must select their courses of study, and such selection must have the written approval of their parents. Forms will be supplied for that purpose.

2. Pupils are not allowed to select subjects from two or more courses. A choice of courses is allowed, but not a choice of subjects.

3. Pupils will not be allowed to change courses in the High School without permission from the High School Committee.

4. Pupils must obtain 14 units to be in the sophomore class, 30 units to be in the junior class, 50 units to be in the senior class, 76 units to be graduated.

NOTE—A unit represents one prepared recitation period or two unprepared recitation periods a week during the school year.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
 That stir our hearts in youth,
 The impulse to a wordless prayer,
 The dreams of love and truth,
 The longings after something lost,
 The strivings after better clothes—
 These things can never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
 Must find some work to do.
 Lose not a chance to waken love—

Be firm, and just, and true;
 So shall a light that cannot fade

Beam on thee from on high,
 And angel voices say to thee—

These things shall never die.

Love + best wishes
 from Molly.

Regular Mid-Week Meetings

Meeting for prayer and testimony Thursdays at 7.30 p. m.
Women's mission meeting Wednesday, April 1.
Women's sewing meeting Wednesday, April 15.

Christian Endeavor Topics.

April 5 Twelve Great Verses. IV. The Power Verse.
Phil 4:13.
April 12 Omitted on account of Easter Concert.
April 19 The Consecration of Time. Eccl. 3:1-8.
April 26 Our Tongues for Christ. Exod. 4:10-16.

Covenant Reminder.

"We engage, therefore, by the aid of the Holy Spirit, to contribute cheerfully and regularly to the support of the ministry, the expenses of the church, and the spread of the gospel through all nations."

Last month's calendar reported seven new members added to our growing fellowship. This month we report nine more: Miss Fannie Hollis and Miss Helen Kilburn of the Normal school, Mrs. C. L. Mars of Centre street and Mrs. Clara Doble of Plymouth street were received by baptism; Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Quinn and Miss Laura Newson by letter; and Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Merritt by experience. Two were given letters to other churches. Our present membership is 127. During the pastorate just closing 46 new members have been added to the church, a net gain of 32 in membership.

For the Boys and Girls.

Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength I will try always:

To honor my Saviour.
To obey my parents.
To speak the truth.
To be kind to everyone.
To stand up for the right.
To be helpful in my home.
To be faithful in my school.
To be true and pure in all I do.
To say such words as Jesus would have me say.
To read such books as Jesus would have me read.
To do such things as Jesus would have me do.

True loyalty to a pastor shows itself in continued support of the cause of God which he sought to build up. Failure in this is disloyalty to Christ.

"O Soul of mine, to life's new rapture born,
Canst thou forget the splendor of that morn,
When, through the chill and silence of thy night
Stole warm the radiance of the Easter light?
Did not thy Lord before the dawn of day,
Unseal thy tomb and bid thee come away?
And in that sacred garden, cool and dim,
Amid the lilies didst thou walk with Him?"
Then why shouldst thou, all trembling and afraid,
Still bring thy spices where the Lord laid?
Unto the heavens lift up thy downcast eyes
The Lord is risen, and thou with Him didst rise.

1. THE PIONEERS.

The Spirit of Enlightenment appears, and Massachusetts enters, followed by the two branches of the Legislature. The Hours' dance ends with the time dial at 1824. James G. Carter is the first to urge professional training for teachers.

"The first step toward reform in the system of popular education is the scientific preparation of teachers for the free schools. The only measure to secure this is to establish an institution for the purpose."

Carter heads a group of citizens who petition Massachusetts for a Board of Education (1837). Massachusetts creates a Board consisting of eight men.

Horace Mann is made Secretary.

"Henceforth, so long as I hold this office, I dedicate myself to the supremest welfare of mankind on earth."

"CLASS OF 1913."

GRADUATION EXERCISES HELD AT HIGH SCHOOL TODAY.

First Time Auditorium Has Been Used for This Purpose—Program Proved Delightfully Varied—Class Has Made Fine Scholastic Record.

The class of 1913 of the New Bedford High school, the first to be graduated from the new building, received their diplomas or certificates from the hands of Superintendent Allen P. Keith, at the commencement exercises in the school auditorium this afternoon, and as students, completed the final term's work together. The school hall which today was used for the first time for the graduation exercises had been tastefully decorated with palms and flowers, with the colors of the senior class predominating, and when at 2 30 o'clock the High school orchestra played the opening march, there was not a seat in the auditorium but which was filled. In many ways the exercises were more interesting than any for many years previous, in that the usual program of essays was varied by a violin solo by one of the class, and the school orchestra gave the public some conception, by its several numbers, of the really high attainment of this one department of the school activities. And then again, the class of 1913 has the honor of graduating a higher percentage of students with credit in their academic courses, than any class which has graduated from the High school for many years.

Superintendent Keith, in presenting the diplomas, congratulated the class members and admonished them to always keep in mind the class motto of "Follow the Gleam," saying in part:

"Your class motto has made a deep impression upon me, and I hope that to you it means, not a flash for today only, but that steady light which illumines the soul and makes for human wealth. The mad rush of the present day for material wealth is causing a tremendous waste of human energy and life. As you stand here today, the first class to graduate from this beautiful building, I hope you will resolve to give to life the very best that is in you, that you may be rich in human wealth at least.

"There are three classes of workers in every walk of life, the leaders, who point the way; the followers, who do the work, and the third class, whose chief business seems to be avoiding work themselves and trying to induce others to join them. The first class is open to those who have the ambition to win, the second class is open to all, while the third class should be shunned as would any instrument of self-destruction. It is my earnest wish that 'the Gleam' may lead each one of you to a noble and successful life from which the power of godness may constantly shine."

The decorations in the hall were in charge of a committee of the junior class, and without any attempt at elaborateness an unusually pretty effect had been secured. On the wall at the rear of the platform was the class motto, "Follow the Gleam," in letters of cloth of gold on a blue velvet field. Beneath were the numerals "1913" in alternating blue and yellow electric lights on a background of black velvet.

At the four corners of the platform were tall bay trees, while across the front of the platform were palms arranged in an ascending line from the center towards the sides. In front of the palms across the edge of the stage were massed large bunches of laurel, while the chandeliers at the sides of the room were covered with the same blossoms.

The seating capacity of the school auditorium is slightly under 1300, and the school authorities saw to it today that the relatives and friends of the graduates, for whom in reality the exercises are held, were well provided for. To each member of the class was assigned seven tickets, and the holders of these were given the best of the seats upon the front of the main floor and in front of the galleries. The junior class was also given one section, while the other classes of the school and the public were assigned seats that remained. While in former years provision was made for the under-graduates, this year no such provision was made, although each under-graduate if he desired to attend the exercises was provided with an individual ticket.

By this arrangement those who had reason to be directly and personally interested in the graduation exercises were looked after, with the result that the program was followed, perhaps, with keener appreciation and satisfaction and with less of the attitude of mere curiosity than any graduation program of many years.

The large stage in the hall was ample for the accommodation of the graduating class, and as the orchestra started its opening number, Edward T. Wilson, the president of 1913, came in through a door on the left of auditorium, followed by the class. The boys were in the lead, and as they marched up onto the stage, they wound in and out between the rows of chairs, until when the entire class was ready to be seated, the girls occupied the front rows and the boys the back rows. The class, 85 in number, made a pretty picture, with the sombre black of the boys' suits as a background for the white dresses which were worn by all the girls, while surrounding the entire group was a wall of greenery provided by the ferns and palms and plants.

As the orchestra finished its selection, Rev. Frank H. Peters, D. D., offered prayer, and at its conclusion, the salutatory was delivered by Miss Alberta May Knox, who in the name of the class welcomed parents and friends to the exercises.

The Salutatory.

Miss Knox drew a comparison between opportunities which the 1913 graduates of the New Bedford High school have had and those of the youth of other times. She contrasted the life which confronts this year's graduates with the life upon which the Greek and the Roman youth entered, to ensure, she said, a keener appreciation of the exceptional advantages of the present day.

Miss Knox spoke of Longfellow's salutatory to his class at the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation from Bowdoin college, and she recited a portion of the verses read by him on that occasion.

"What a lesson for our tomorrows," said the speaker "do we find in these lines which teach us that however much the institution may count the man counts far more."

After tracing the upward course of the graduates from High school this year from the primary school, Miss Knox said: "The present problem is the uplifting of humanity, which calls for personal service, personal character."

"If the public schools of New Bedford have given us that purity, strength and nobility of character which the world today demands of its citizens, and which will enable us to be of the greatest service to ourselves and to our fellow men, they have fulfilled their mission, and we, their product, shall, in the words of another, not be satisfied with the standards of the plains; but we shall lift our eyes unto the hills and breathe the mountain air, even while we walk the valleys of time!"

"Thus equipped, gratefully, earnestly, hopefully, we greet the new, new life!"

"A Dream Tapestry."

The salutatory was followed by an essay, "A Dream Tapestry," by Gertrude Wilson, with music composed and played by Louise Coggeshall, a number which was an innovation at a graduation program and which proved one of the delightful things of the entire afternoon. Miss Wilson told the tale of the love and marriage of the simple folk of a fishing village.

It was while she was drowsing in the rooms of the Old Dartmouth Historical society that an elf came out of the curling smoke, she said, and invited her to knit with the multi-colored wool he offered.

And while she made her tapestry slowly, before her there hovered scene after scene in which the love of Bethiah Macy and Benjamin Pad-dock pressed on to a marriage ceremony.

Bethiah lived with her father and brothers in a little cottage that was ample enough for seafolk. Then Benjamin's ship came in after a voyage of many months, and Bethiah welcomed her lover in the very unesctatic manner of a Quakeress. The dream here came to an end with Benjamin returned safely to the side of Bethiah, but the elf, who had all the while directed the making of the dream tapestry and the presentation of the phantom characters, demanded that this vision of love, like all others, should end in the time-worn orthodox manner.

And so the making of the tapestry and the accompanying dreams went on until Bethiah and Benjamin were married in the village church. With the marital culmination, the dream ended, the elf departed, and only the smoking logs in the fireplace of the historical society's rooms remained.

"The Merchant Marine."

A selection by the orchestra, "Die Schatzchen," by Victor Herbert, was followed by the essay of Fred Bulcock, who discussed the need of securing an American merchant marine that will correspond in size and rate of growth with the country's large and steadily increasing foreign commerce. Bulcock described the decline of ocean trade transportation by American ships since the time of the Civil war, and said that the causes of this decline were the substitution of steamers for sailing vessels, the withdrawal of federal support, and the burdening of the merchant marine by refusing to re-admit vessels that had been transferred from the American flag to a foreign standard, by refusing to repeal the heavy revenue taxes placed upon shipping during the war, by placing a tariff on shipbuilding material, and by not readily providing liberal payments for the carrying of ocean mails under favorable time contracts.

The speaker pointed out that Uncle Sam will be little more than the gate-keeper of the Panama canal since American owned ships carry but nine per cent of the world's commerce.

"Only five regular coastal lines have as yet announced their intention of using the canal," said the speaker. "There are less than a dozen ships on the Atlantic and Pacific under the American flag that are not prohibited from using the canal."

The essayist argued that the chief opposition to a United States merchant marine comes from the American farmer, and that foreign carriers are not the cheapest. "Under present conditions it is as absurd to presume that our foreign commerce will increase in proportion to that of other countries as it would be to expect the Star Store to declare a dividend if it was forced to hire Steiger's wagons to deliver the goods." He said that because of the supremacy of Great Britain in the manufacture of ships, because of the withdrawal of government support, and because of the heavy burden of war taxes, the decline of the American merchant marine was inevitable, and concluded:

"If the legislators of our country persist in their neglect of our merchant marine, it will mean that the four hundred million dollar canal will be of no use to us, that the United States will be insignificant in international trade, that the immense amount that has been spent to develop our ports will be wasted, and that a large part of our farmers' profits must go to pay dividends of foreign ship owners."

Robert A. Gundersen, who is a member of the graduating class, and one of the finest musicians who has been a student in the High school here for many years, contributed as a violin solo the Concerto in D Minor by Vieuxtemps and his rendition held the rapt attention of the entire auditorium through the three movements of the work.

Arctic Responsibility.

Miss Loretta Littlewood's essay, which came next, was an interesting account of "How the Arctic Ice Cap Was Responsible for the Whaleships and Cotton Mills of New Bedford." In introduction, Miss Littlewood told of glacial action in Switzerland. After describing the character of many curious rocks and boulders in this section of New England, Miss Littlewood said that they were the result of the same sort of action that is now taking place in Switzerland. She told of the movement of the glacier over northern North America, and reviewed the observations of Louis Agassiz in proving that the peculiar contour of the surface of New England was the result of glacial action.

"The poets sing of the 'rock bound coast' upon which the Pilgrim fathers landed," said the speaker. "But there are no rock bound coasts in southeastern Massachusetts. The hills which first greeted the eyes of the Pilgrim fathers are accumulations of sand, gravel and boulders that were scraped off by the ice from the mountains and ledges of New Hampshire, and which were transported to the margin of the glacier and deposited over the whole southeastern part of our state."

Miss Littlewood told of the coast line being transformed by the action of the glacier so that it was favorable for good harbors, for fishing and shipbuilding. She traced the progress of these pursuits through the time of the whaling industry, which flourished through many years of New Bedford's growth, and which boured into this city much of the wealth now invested in the mills.

"With a splendid harbor and direct communication with all points of

New England, a natural trading center for scores of communities which line the shores of Buzzards Bay," said Miss Littlewood, "we are destined by our natural advantages to become one of the commercial gateways of Eastern America."

"The Moving Picture."

Gilbert F. Hart, who spoke of "The Moving Picture in Science and in Education," was the last of the essayists of the afternoon, and Mr. Hart spoke interestingly of the subject.

Mr. Hart said the moving picture was the result of man's desire to reproduce a living object in picture. He described the working of the first moving picture machines, and told of the process by which motion pictures are now made and projected on a screen. In speaking of the value of the motion picture, he said that it has an immense field before it, from its ability to convey an accurate and enduring impression.

The speaker told of the use to which motion pictures are put in the schools of New York, where they are used in demonstrations before the chemistry and commercial geography classes, and of their use by several northern railway companies in increasing the standard of efficiency among their employees.

In describing the usefulness of the cinematograph in the world of science he told of films of animals obtained by Percy Smith, of England, Prof. Heller, of the Smithsonian Institute and Paul J. Rainey, the naturalist and hunter. The moving picture has proved that science appeals to the public, he said, for a film showing the development of insect life or of plant life has been encored as much as the most ingenious trick picture.

He asserted that moving pictures of surgical operations and of the movements of the human body are important factors in the study of medicine.

"But after all," said the essayist, "the principal use of the moving pictures is amusement. He told of the weekly entertainments in small villages, and commended the method of censorship upon the films.

"The moving picture has taken firm root," concluded the speaker, "and its advantages are rapidly branching to all corners of the world. The new educator has only begun to teach; the new scientist has just made known its possibilities; the new entertainer has but lately found its audience. When moving pictures show man the universe, then, and then only, will their work be done."

Popular Bug Song.

In these days of indigestion
It is often times a question
As to what to eat and what to leave alone;
For each microbe and bacillus
Has a different way to kill us
And in time they always claim us for their own.
There are germs of every kind
In any food that you can find
In the market or upon the bill of fare,
Drinking water is just as risky
As the so-called deadly whisky
And it's often a mistake to breathe the air.

Some little bug is going to find you some day,
Some little bug will creep up behind you some day,
Then he'll send for his bug friends
And all your earthly trouble ends;
Some little bug is going to find you some day.

The inviting green cucumber
Gets most every body's number,
While the green corn has a system of its own;
Though a radish seems nutritious
Its behavior is quite vicious
And a doctor will soon be coming to your home.
Eating lobster cooked or plain
Is only flirting with ptomaine
While an oyster sometimes has a lot to say
But the clams we eat in chowder
Make the angels chant the louder
For they know that we'll be with them right away.

Take a slice of nice fried onion
And you're fit for Dr. Huxton,
Apple dumplings kill you quicker than a train.
Chow a cheesy midnight "Rabbit"
And a grave you'll soon inhabit
Oh, to eat at all is such a foolish game.
Bating huckleberry pie,
Is a pleasing way to die
While sauerkraut brings on softening of the brain.
When you eat banana fritters
Every undertaker titters
And the casket makers nearly go insane.

Pass the wine cup free,
Drink, drink, drink, jolly boys are we.
Free from care and despair,
What care we?
Here's to wine divine, that brings us jollity.

Oh, here's to Johnny Harvard!
Fill him up a full glass;
Fill him up a glass to his name and fame,
And at the same time don't forget his true love;
Fill her up a bumper to the brim.

We never drink, 'tis very clear,
Because the "fiz" is very dear;
But roll us in a keg of beer,
And watch us wink, wink, wink.

"The Valedictory."

The class valedictory which was delivered by Miss Gladys Blackmer, who was third in rank in the class and who was substitute valedictorian because of the illness of Grace A. Brownell, originally appointed valedictorian, was the last on the program prior to the actual award of the diplomas by Mr. Keith, and Miss Blackmer took as her subject the class motto "Follow the Gleam," an exhortation of Tennyson in his "Idyls of the King."

She told how utterly incapable of expression is the idea which it conveys to anyone and explained how King Arthur and the Knights of the Round Table followed the gleam.

In concluding Miss Blackmer turned to her classmates and said:

"Classmates:
"The victory of Arthur has had its fascination for us, but how much have we understood of its significance? Do we see the vision? Have we longed to set forth on a notable quest, being actuated by an earnest desire to follow the Gleam? Perhaps not, since for thirteen years, under the careful supervision of our many leaders, very little of the initiative has been possible to us. Now, as we step forth alone, let us here take the vow to seek the Grail, to follow the Gleam, as did Arthur's knights of old. May this, our graduation, be more than an advancement in mental attainment; may it be, in truth, an advance in moral and spiritual development. May we ever cherish in our hearts Tenny's exhortation:

"Not of the sunlight,
Not of the moonlight,
Not of the starlight!
Oh young mariner,
Down to the haven,
Call your companions,
Launch your vessel
And crowd your canvas,
And ere it vanishes
Over the margin,
After it, follow it,
Follow the Gleam!"

Award of Diplomas.

At the completion of the valedictory the class rose, and Mr. Keith, as he called the name of each graduate, delivered the diplomas and certificates. The following were the recipients:

"The Class Ode."

The class ode brought the exercises to a close, and the musical setting provided by Miss Alice E. Silvia proved to be a piece of work that commanded the respect of the mature musician. It was admirably fitted to the words and to the spirit of the occasion. It was a fine specimen of four-part writing in modified chorale form. The melody was tuneful; and the voice leading was excellent. In fact, the composer showed unusual skill in handling the voice parts, and it was in every respect a piece of work worthy of warm commendation, for it displayed a precocious talent.

Miss Gladys E. Keen Became Bride of M. A. Snow Saturday

Miss Gladys E. Keen, daughter of Mrs. Charles F. Keen, of 79 Locust street, and Marshall A. Snow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Snow of Lakeville, were married Saturday afternoon at three by the Rev. Herbert M. Hainer. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride, under an arch of mountain laurel and roses. The double ring service was used.

Mrs. Snow was a teacher at the Horatio A. Kempton school. She is a graduate of the New Bedford High school and the Bridgewater Normal school and is a well known Bible school worker. Mr. Snow is a graduate of the Middleboro High school and Wentworth institute, Boston. He is an electrician. Mr. and Mrs. Snow will make their home in Middleboro.

A MIDWINTER WEDDING

Miss E. Rebecca Elliott Marries
William A. Potter, 4th

New York City, February 7.—The home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Younge 108 W. 132nd street was most beautifully decorated with flowers and palms for the marriage of Miss E. Rebecca Elliott, formerly of Jacksonville, Fla., to Mr. William A. Potter 4th., of Philadelphia on Friday evening February 6th.

Before the ceremony Mrs. Edward E. Best accompanied by Miss Elnorist J. Younge of Washington, D. C., sang "O Perfect Love" by Louise Jacobus Wood and "A Thought of You" composed by the groom and dedicated to the bride elect. The bridal party entered the reception room to the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Fannie M. Wick of Montclair, and Mr. Ralph West of Yonkers, N. Y., violinist.

The ushers were Mr. Herbert B. Christian and Mr. Fred L. Wiley, Robinson Powell, Jr., ring bearer and John W. Harris Jr., of Philadelphia, was best man.

The maid of honor Miss Henri May Younge wore an exquisite gown of lemon chiffon and Chantilly lace over pink satin and carried a bouquet of tea roses tied with lemon and green tulle.

The bride who was given away by her brother, Mr. Thomas E. Elliott, a prosperous business man of Albany, Ga., was beautifully gowned in bridal satin and imported lace showered with lillies of the valley. Her veil was caught with lillies of the valley and orange blossoms. She carried a shower of bridal roses and lillies of the valley.

Rev. Dr. Clayton A. Powell pastor of Abyssinia Baptist Church performed the ceremony.

The bride was born in Albany, Ga., where her late father conducted a large undertaking establishment, and afterwards lived in Jacksonville, Fla., until coming north. She received her literary training at Fisk University, Nashville, Tenn., her business training at Chicago Business College, Chicago, Ill., and has recently completed a special teacher-clerk course at New York City College. She has held many responsible positions in the business as well as professional world among which were: secretary to the Editor at the A. M. E. Zion Publishing House Charlotte N. C., Hear of Commercial Department, Livingstone College Salisbury, N. C., and stenographer for the law firm of Wesley, Atkins and Chandler, Muskogee, Oklahoma.

Mr. Potter is the son of the late Louis Potter and Mrs. Louise Potter and is Advertising Manager for The Philadelphia Tribune.

Pre-Nuptial Functions

The bride has been extensively entertained by her friends here during the past few weeks and on Saturday evening, January 31st a linen shower was given in her honor at the home of Miss Mildred Morris 98 Washington avenue, Newark, N. J., by the Misses Gladys Merritt, Henri Mae Younge, Gladys Cannon and Mildred Morris. Guests were present from New York City, Flushing, L. I., Jersey City, Orange, Bloomfield and Newark, N. J. The bride was showered with many beautiful and useful pieces of linen.

On Sunday evening, February 1st, a very elaborate reception was tendered the bride by Miss Anna Belle Anderson a former classmate at Fisk. About 40 guests enjoyed the occasion.

Out of Town Guests

Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. Louise Potter and Mrs. Duarte Silver, mother and sister of the groom Miss Geness Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Jones, Mr. Rae Lawson, Mr. Jos. Hilton, Mr. and Mrs. E. Washington Rhodes and Dr. Charles Dorsey of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Potter were the recipients of many valuable and useful gifts from friends in several cities. They will reside at 1330 S. 16th street, Philadelphia where they will be at home to their friends on Sunday, February 8th.

RECIPE FOR KISS CAKE Do this as it should be done

Take one armful of pretty girls, 1 lovely face, 2 laughing brown or blue eyes, 2 rosy cheeks, 2 lips like strawberries. Mix well together and press 2 lips. The result will be astonishing.

For frosting, take one piece of dark piazza and a little moonlight and press into one large and small hand so as not to attract attention, 2 ounces of romance and 1 or 2 whiskers. Dissolve one-half a dozen glances into a quantity of hesitation and 2 ounces of yielding. Place kisses on blushing lips or cheeks.

Flavor with a slight scream and set aside to cool.

If at first you don't succeed try and try again.

THE WASHINGTON-BOWSER BRIDAL PARTY AT WEDDING AT BRIDE'S HOME, SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 21, 1924

BIG JUNE WEDDING

BOWSER — WASHINGTON NUP-TIALS—THE EVENT OF THE SEASON.

The wedding of Miss Grace Washington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin H. Washington of Everett, and Mr. Roscoe Bowser, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowser of Cohasset, which took place last Saturday night at Glendale Baptist church, Everett, was one of the prettiest that was ever held among us, in or near Boston. The church was decorated with flowers, an arch of evergreen being dotted with 300 white peonies cut fresh from the garden of Mr.

Washington. The pews were also flower decorated, iris, peonies and greens being used. At eight o'clock Mrs. Mabel Greenwood, cousin of the bride, who came on from New Jersey, presided at the organ and "O Promise Me" was beautifully sung by Mrs. Craig of Roxbury. Then the bridal party entered, first the ushers, Henry F. Washington, Albert J. Washington, Elliott Bowser, Jr., Benjamin H. Washington, Jr., and William E. Lovett, followed by the bridesmaids, Miss Marion Washington, sister of the bride, and Miss Alberta Knox of New Bedford. They looked exceedingly pretty, carrying white shepherd's crooks trimmed with orchids, iris and maiden hair fern. They wore lovely gowns of orchid pink crepe and georgette and hats of the same shade with ribbon streamers. Mrs. Alice Morrison, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore brocaded turquoise blue with georgette and lace and carried a bouquet of sweet peas. The ring bearer came next, little Edward Morrison, Jr., a nephew of the bride. He was dressed in white shantung and carried a white satin tray that contained a white satin pillow upon which rested two rings. The little flower girl, Elaine Roberts, cousin of the bride, preceded the bride, and, dressed in pink crepe de chine with trimmings of turquoise blue and lace, and carrying a beautiful basket of flowers, strewed the aisle with petals over which walked the bride, leaning on the arm of her father. The bride was very beautiful in an elegant gown of bridal satin and chantilly lace with train falling gracefully from the shoulder, revealing the georgette lining of pale canary yellow. She wore the bridal veil worn by her mother and coronet of chantilly lace caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses, made especially for her by Miss R. Adelaide Washington, the horticulturist, who is also a cousin. They were met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. William McKenzie, where Rev. Dr. Tuller performed the two ring service. The bride was given away by her father. Mr. William L. Richardson sang beautifully "Perfect Love." Then the blessing and then the bridal procession, led by Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe A. Bowser, and followed by a long train of relatives of both bride and groom.

The church was filled to overflowing, over 400 invitations being accepted. A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents on Glendale street. There was an unusual crush of people, many of them being neighbors who have seen the bride grow up. For a long time there has not been such a reunion of old Bostonians and old friends of days gone by in Boston. Boston society as it used to be was well represented. The bride's gifts to her attendants were strings of pearls and platinum bar pin. The bridal gifts were too numerous to record. There is an abundance of them, for the bride was very popular and received very many showers of beautiful gifts before her wedding. There was, however, a beautiful silver tea service from Mr. and Mrs. George M. Bonney, Mr. Washington's employer for a number of years, and the Bonney associates, a complete a handsome electric floor lamp from pyrex set from the fellow workmen of the groom and individual gifts from the girls of the millinery establishment where the bride was employed. Her popularity among the church people was shown by the gift of a lovely water set from the deacons of the church. A collation was served on the lawn. Photographs of the bride and groom and attendants were taken by Bruton, our Roxbury photographer. Among the out-of-town guests who are immediate relatives of the families were Mrs. Henry L. Freeman of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Hare of New Hampshire, Miss Aline Bowser of Philadelphia, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton F. Oliver, Mrs. H. J. Oliver, Mrs. Rae Thomson Mabry and Mrs. Gladys Washington Burt, of Jersey City. It was a pretty wedding in every respect and one long to be remembered.

CLASS SONG 1913

Words by:
Gladys Blackmer

Music by:
Alice E. Silvia

Now we stand upon life's threshold,
Looking backward through the years
Of our schooldays—happy mem'ries
Of our varied joys and fears!
And we thank you, Alma Mater,
For your ever watchful eye,
Which has guarded and directed
Toward ambition's goal on high.

Alma Mater, you have opened
Wide for us a treasure store,
And from out its rich abundance
Have we wealth forever more.
We have found there honor's diadem,
Wisdom's ruby, hope's bright star,
And the jewelled chain of friendship,
Which no fate shall break or mar.

Thus, we stand before the entrance,
At the open door of life,
With its mingled bliss and sorrow,
With its struggle and its strife,
But Success stands always beck'ning
To the steadfast and the true;
We shall conquer, Alma Mater,
Through the precepts taught by you.

As we pause before this portal,
Linger with a faint regret,
Let us turn our faces forward,
And these precepts ne'er forget.
Let us turn our faces upward
Whence that glimmering light doth stream;
Make our lives sincere and noble,
Brightened by the guiding Gleam.

MISS ALBERTA M. KNOX.

Who are the winners of the Bourne Prize Essays, recently contested for by the members of the senior class of the New Bedford High school. Not only did Miss Knox win the third prize in the essay contest, but she also ranks second in her class in her studies. She will deliver the salutatorian address at the graduation exercises to be held in the High school hall in June.

Miss Wilson and Miss Sylvia are editors of the Alpha, the High school monthly paper. Both are among honor pupils of the graduation class.

PRAISES CLASS MOTTO.

Rev. C. Julian Tuthill Preaches on "Follow the Gleam."

Rev. C. Julian Tuthill, pastor of the Mattapoisett Congregational church, praised the motto, "Follow the gleam," which has been selected by the graduating class of the New Bedford High school, in his sermon Sunday morning. Mr. Tuthill's text was "Walk in the Light."

He said in part:

"When I heard of the class choice of such a suggestive phrase, 'Follow the Gleam,' I said to myself, I must make that the theme of a short sermon. My mind went back to academy days, when I was instrumental in coining 'Nostra Recta Agnoscatur,' by our good deeds let us be known, and to the college days when the young women of our class selected Chaucer's 'And gladly wolde he learne and gladly teche,'—mottoes profitable to me. As theologues in Andover seminary I do not remember that we gave mottoes any concern. And I rather admire this one of New Bedford's, 'Follow the Gleam,' an expression full of beauty and of charm to the mind.

"The Bible tells us what to follow: 'Follow me,' 'Follow after love,' 'Follow after peace with all men,' 'Always follow after that which is good, one toward another, and toward all,' 'Let us follow on to know Jehovah; his going forth is sure as the morning.'

"And the Bible has much to say about the gleam, under that larger word, light: 'I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life,' 'Jehovah God is a sun and a shield,' 'And suddenly there shone round about him a light from heaven,' the gleam with a voice in it, calling Paul to change over to the side of Jesus Christ.

"If the class of 1913 over in New Bedford's High school would like Bible for their 'Follow the Gleam,' John's diction, 'Walk in the light,' more than covers it. Scripture is full of 'the beautiful light of God,' and all Christians are following the best gleam which has penetrated human life.
